Trends in Bone Morphogenetic Protein Usage since the U.S. Food and Drug Administration Advisory in 2008: What Happens to Physician Practices When the Food and Drug Administration Issues an Advisory?

Janay Mckie¹ Sheeraz Qureshi² James Iatridis²,³ Natalia Egorova⁴ Samuel Cho² Andrew C. Hecht²

¹ Pediatric Orthopaedic Fellow, Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Children, Dallas, Texas
² Department of Orthopaedics, The Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai, New York, United States
³ Department of Spine Research, The Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai, New York, United States
⁴ Department of Health Evidence and Policy, Icahn Medical Institute, New York, United States

Address for correspondence: Andrew Hecht, MD, Co-Director of Spine Surgery, Department of Orthopaedics, The Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai, Faculty Practice Associates Floor 9, 5 East 98th Street, New York, NY 10029, United States (e-mail: andrew.hecht@mountsinai.org).

Global Spine J

ERRATUM

There was an error in the name of Andrew C. Hecht in the above article in Global Spine Journal, Volume 4, Number 2, 2014, page 71 (DOI: 10.1055/s-0033-1363515). The author’s middle initial was omitted. The correct listing of the author’s name is Andrew C. Hecht as appears above.