Das englische Abstract des Beitrags „Update: Tuberkulose bei Erwachsenen in Deutschland“ (DMW 2016; 141: 643-649) muss korrekt heißen:

With an incidence of 5.6/100000 tuberculosis remains rare in Germany. However, for the first time since over 60 years, case numbers have started to increase since 2013. Therefore, knowledge of the clinical presentation as well as diagnostic and therapeutic approaches is important, specifically when caring for migrant patients. The broad use of molecular analyses will soon facilitate the choice of therapeutic regimens, novel drugs already enable us to successfully treat also the increasing numbers of drug-resistant tuberculosis cases.
