

The last time, adieu...

Dear colleagues,

At the outset, let me convey my sincere thanks to each and everyone of you for having helped me sail through so far. I have come to the end of my term as the Editor-in-Chief, The Indian Journal of Radiology and Imaging (IJRI) for the period 2013–2015. This tenure has been a witness to 12 issues, beginning with February 2013, and this November 2015 issue being the last one, the 12th (my swansong). I am more than pleased to state that as I demit office, there are no pending issues of IJRI and the new team can take over from the very next issue (February 2016) with full gusto.

As I thank all of you, I mustn't forget to mention that I have been just on the issue as a representative of a committed Editorial Committee, along with a panel of eminent domestic and international advisors, whose contributions have helped our journal reach a new high. Including this, all the issues so far have been a testament to focused areas of representations in Radiology and Imaging, timely updates with guest editing by our valued colleagues being a constant aspect, resulting in the journal progressing qualitatively.

I have no iota of doubt that the new team will be able to perform well, for which your unfettered support is a must.

Wishing all of you a great year in 2016.
